Video: SFMOMA Does MTV 'Cribs'-Style Short With SF Photographer Michael Jang

BY JAY BARMANN IN ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT ON SEP 2, 2016

The revamped SFMOMA has a newly revived YouTube presence, the best part of which is a new series called "Artist Cribs" featuring well edited, MTV-style tours of artists' homes. The latest was shot in the home of the undeniably cool SF-based photographer Michael Jang, some of whose pieces were recently acquired by the museum and are part of the inaugural photography exhibit "California and the West." Jang has shot images of many notable celebrities, and shows off pictures he took of William Burroughs and Robin Williams, and his house, decorated with a lot of his own black-and-white work, is enviable.

Also part of this new "Artist Cribs" video series are Brooklyn-based performance artist Vito Acconi, Long Island-based media artist Peter Campus, and Manhattan-based multimedia artist Tony Oursler.
