

LA WEEKLY

ART AT HOME: MAY 1-3

SHANA NYS DAMBROT MAY 1, 2020

From the launch of a new L.A. gallery consortium website to a psychedelic art and music stream, limited-run works of video art, the virtual versions of a benefit auction, an original dance, and a month-long residential performance piece enacted in isolation, here are the nine best ways to get artful at home this weekend.

Tim Youd for CAM St. Louis

Tim Youd Retypes The Tunnel in 30-day performance starting May 1. Artist Tim Youd is starting a month-long virtual performance with the support of CAM St. Louis. Every day through May 31, he will be retyping William Gass's novel The Tunnel — not from the author's historical site-specificity point of view for which Youd's work is known, but rather from his garage in Los Angeles. He'll be livestreaming his performance daily from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. PDT on YouTube for the whole month, and every Friday at 11 a.m., Youd will also speak with a guest and perform for an hour on Instagram Live through the CAM St. Louis account. tunnelretyped.com